SPRING TERM opens January 22d, 1879.

SPRING TERM closes June 10th, 1879.

Raleigh Female Seminary.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

I have set apart for this Department a large room, and furnished it with desks and comfortable seats, wall maps and globes. In this room the children will study and recite, and will have such regulations as are suited to their needs.

They will use Text-books of the same series as they will use when they are advanced sufficiently to join the higher classes.

They will receive instruction in the Calisthenic exercise at an age when they derive most benefit from it.

I have employed Miss Cornelia E. McDaniel to take charge of this Department and to devote her whole time to it. She is a graduate of the Seminary, has had a large experience both in Oxford and in Raleigh in teaching and managing children, and is now attending the Normal School at Chapel Hill for the special purpose of acquainting herself with the methods of teaching children as exhibited in the Kindergarten system.

The charge for tuition in this Department, and for instruction in Calisthenics, is fifteen dollars per term of twenty weeks.

Location.

As a location for a female school of high grade, Raleigh presents every attraction and advantage which even the most fastidious taste could require. It is easily accessible, being connected by railroad and telegraph with all parts of the country. The atmosphere is pure and healthy, the climate, mild, and the surrounding scenery varied and beautiful. It has long been noted for the elegance, culture and refinement of its social life. The pulpits of all the religious denominations are filled by able and devout men; the Sabbath schools are admirably conducted; and the spirit of intelligent piety gives tone and charm to the social and domestic life. The Public Institutions, the State Library, Concerts by the best musicians, Lectures by celebrated orators—these and other indirect educational agencies are within reach of the young ladies.

The Seminary is beautifully located in the northeastern part of the city, a half mile from the Capitol. The grounds comprise several acres, which tastefully laid off and decorated furnish ample facilities for pleasant and healthful exercise in the open air.

The edifice includes a central building, 68 × 73, used for dormitories, parlors and dining room; and two wings, one for chapel and recitation-rooms, and the other for music-rooms and art gallery.

The arrangements for heating and ventilation and all the provisions for the health and comfort of the pupils are ample and complete.

Domestic Government.

The design of the Principal is to surround the pupils while under his care with such influences as shall cultivate the taste, refine and polish the manners, develop and strengthen the moral sense, and fit them to occupy with ease and grace every department of social and domestic life.

Neatness and order everywhere and at all times, are inculcated.

Uniform courtesy towards others is required.

Cheerful conversation at the table is encouraged.

Correspondence with gentlemen is not allowed. Visits from gentlemen are allowed only on the written request of the parents and guardians of the pupil. And even then the Principal reserves the right to refuse or grant the request. As he is responsible for his pupils, he must be free to act according to his own judgment.

The young ladies are required to keep their rooms in order; and every failure in this matter is marked in the reports sent home.

Visits to them from relatives and friends should be so arranged as not to conflict with their hours of study and recitation.

Health and Physical Training.

Good health, important to every one, is specially so to woman. The Principal has kept this steadily in view in the furnishing, and all the regulations of the Seminary. The hours of study and recitation, rising and retiring, exercise and recreation have been arranged with the view of keeping the body as well as the mind in a state of sound and vigorous health.

As a pleasant indoor exercise, adapted to promote gracefulness of bearing and movement, a system of light Gymnastics, with suitable apparatus, has been prepared. A lady, every way qualified for the place, has charge of this department.

Every pupil, unless physically unable, is required to take this exercise.

Infirmary.

For the proper care and treatment of the sick pupils a suite of rooms has been set apart for an Infirmary. These rooms are completely isolated from the other rooms, have a southern exposure, and are bright and cheerful. A lady of experience in attending sick persons is in charge. In cases of serious illness the best medical skill of the city is secured, and parents are promptly notified; and they may feel assured that their daughters will receive every attention which they could have, were they at home.

Uniform.

To prevent rivalry and extravagance in dress a school uniform has been adopted. It consists of a dress of brown alpaca for winter, and one of gray worsted for summer. The material of these dresses is not to cost more than fifty cents per yard. For Commencement, white dresses may be purchased.

In the school-room and the family neat calico is worn.

This uniform is worn on all occasions of a public character by all the students, except those in mourning.

Under these restrictions, the dress of the young ladies is not more costly at school than it would be, were they at home.

Religious Duties.

The pupils are required to attend devotional exercises in the chapel in the morning. On the Sabbath they attend worship and Sabbath school in the First Baptist Church. Young ladies of other denominations are allowed to attend their own church in the morning, provided a suitable attendant can be obtained.

Course of Study.

This comprises a Preparatory and a Collegiate Department.

Preparatory Department.

MISS McDANIEL and MISS PURYEAR.

The studies of this Department are divided into two classes:

First Class—Spelling—Webster and Swinton; Reading—McGuffey; Geography—Cornell and Maury; History—Goodrich; Arithmetic—Robinson's Mental and Olney's Elements.

Second Class—Spelling—Swinton; Reading—McGuffey and Watson; Arithmetic—Robinson's Mental and Olney's Elements; United States History; Geography—Maury; Grammar—Greene's Introduction.

There can be no thorough education without careful training in the primary department. It is indispensable to all good scholarship. Hence special attention is given to the pupils in this department. An experienced teacher devotes all her time to them; and they go up into the higher classes with thorough preparation.

Collegiate Department.

The studies of this department are distributed into the following schools, each of which may be prosecuted and completed independently of the others:

I. English Language and Literature.
II. Latin Language and Literature.
III. Modern Languages.
IV. Mathematics.
V. Natural Science.
VI. Moral Science.
VII. History.

School of English Language and Literature.

MISS PURYEAR.

First Year—Greene's Grammar and Analysis; Study of Words—Trench and Swinton.

Second Year—Hart's Rhetoric; Backus' English Literature.

An accurate and practical knowledge of English is imparted, in the only way in which it can be done, by the study of both the structure and the classics of the language.

To cultivate habits of accurate thought and give facility of expression, written exercises are required once in two weeks.

Each pupil has two reading lessons and two spelling lessons a week, and receives daily instruction in penmanship.

School of Latin.

MR. HOBGOOD.

First Year—Bingham's Grammar.

Second Year—Bingham's Grammar and Reader, Virgil.

Third Year—Virgil and Cicero, Arnold's Latin Prose Composition.

Fourth Year—Horace, Sallust; Roman History and Literature.

A knowledge of Latin facilities learning English; and its study affords the highest mental discipline.

Daily exercises in translating English into Latin call attention to the idioms of both languages. Varied and extensive readings of the classics contribute to the formation of correct taste.

Throughout the course attention is given to Roman History and Literature, Mythology and Antiquities.

School of Modern Languages (French and German).

FRENCH.

MISS TAYLOR.

First Year—Otto's Grammar and De Fiva's Reader.

Second Year—Otto's Grammar, La Literature Fran. (Pylodet), Collot's Dramatic Reader.

Third Year—Borell's Grammar, Collot's Dramatic Reader.

GERMAN.

MISS KERFOOT.

First Year—Otto's Grammar, Eisjunfrau.

Second Year—Otto's Grammar, Schiller's William Tell and Maria Stuart.

In this School the same method is adopted as in the School of Latin. There are daily exercises in translating English into French and German. Students are taught to read and write these languages with ease and pleasure, and to pronounce them correctly.

Instruction in French continues to be given by the lady who has taught it successfvlly for several years.

The teacher of German is an American lady, who has spent several years in Germany in the acquisition of this language.

School of Mathematics.

MR. HOBGOOD and MISS TAYLOR.

First Year—Venable's Arithmetic and Olney's Algebra.

Second Year—Olney's Algebra and Geometry.

Third Year—Olney's Geometry and Trigonometry.

This school holds a conspicious place in the Course of Study on account of its disciplinary power and its practical use. Students are thoroughly grounded in Arithmetic.

School of Natural Science.

MR. HOBGOOD and MISS TAYLOR.

First Year—Maury's Physical Geography, Gray's Botany.

Second Year—Steele's Chemistry, Steele's Natural Philosophy.

Third Year—Steele's Zoology, Steele's Astronomy.

The instruction in this school is given by text-books and lectures, and is illustrated by experiments.

School of Moral Science.

MISS TAYLOR and MISS PURYEAR.

First Year—Wayland's Mental Philosophy, McCosh's Logic.
Second Year—Wayland's Moral Science, McIlvaine's Evidences of Christianity.

The subjects of this school are taught by text-books and lectures. Frequent essays on topics connected with the Course are required of students that they may learn to apply the principles discussed. In Logic specimens of reasoning are analyzed and fallacies are detected according to the laws of the science.

School of History.

First Year—Swinton's Outlines.
Second Year—Selections from Freeman's Course.

The outlines of General History are so taught as to give the student a knowledge of the important events of the Ancient, Mediæval and Modern World; thus establishing a basis for future historical reading and cultivating a taste for it.

School of Music.

PROF. BOHLMANN, Director.
MRS. FRAY,
MISS KERFOOT, } Assistants.

In this School are taught Music on Piano and Organ, Vocalization, and Thorough Bass.

Appreciating fully the increasing importance of music as a branch of polite education, neither pains nor expense has been spared thus far to perfect the pupils in it.

The outfit is ample, and includes one Grand piano, eight large seven-octave square pianos, and two organs.

The Director is a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Berlin, Germany; and during a connection of four years with the Seminary has proved himself a faithful, painstaking and successful teacher.

He was ably assisted during the last session by Mrs Fray. He will be assisted during the next session by Mrs. Fray, and Miss Kerfoot who studied Music at Leipsic, Germany.

School of Art.

MISS SWAIN.

This School comprises Crayon Drawing, and Painting in Oil and Water Colors.

Pupils are taught to draw from objects and sketch from nature, as well as to copy. The studio is supplied with models in plaster of the geometrical figures,—the square, cone, hexagon, pyramid, and sphere; and of the features of the human face—the eye, ear, nose, and mouth. During the past session there were added models in plaster of the Calla Lily, and of Venus of the Bath and Clytie from the Antique.

The teacher is a first class Artist. Besides having unusual talents, she has enjoyed the best advantages that can be furnished in this country, having taken the course of Drawing at Cooper Institute, New York City. During her connection with the School for several sessions, she has proved herself to be a successful teacher.

Every pupil receives instruction in the useful art of Free-hand Drawing, one hour each week, free of charge.

Appliances, Apparatus, &c.

The appliances for teaching the Literary Department consist of Wall-Maps and Globes, a large Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus and a Cabinet of Minerals.

The School Library contains about one thousand well selected books.

The pupils have the use of Encyclopædias and other books of reference in the library of the Principal.

The implements for the Calisthenic Exercise are Rings, Wands and Dumb-Bells.

Diplomas and Certificates.

Pupils who complete the studies of any one of the seven schools, receive Certificates of Proficiency in that school. These certificates are awarded on Commencement day.

Those who complete the studies of the Schools of English Language, Latin, Modern Languages (either French or German), Mathematics, Natural Science, Moral Science, and History, receive Diplomas as Graduates of the Seminary.

Those who complete the studies of the Schools of English Language, Mathematics, Natural Science, Moral Science, and History, receive Diplomas as Graduates in English and Science.

Those who complete the Course prescribed in Music or Art receive Diplomas as Graduates in these Schools.

Every student, applying for a Diploma as Graduate of the Seminary, must either stand an approved examination in English Grammar and Arithmetic, or review these studies during the last term of her course.

Examinations.

These are held on the completion of a study and at the end of the Term, and are in part oral and in part written. The mark obtained on the examination and the average sessional mark are added, and the sum divided by two. The result must be seventy-five hundredths of the maximum grade for the student to be approved.

These Examinations are compulsory as to every student, and are necessary in determining whether she is entitled to Certificates of Proficiency.

Reports.

A daily record of recitations is kept, and a monthly report of progress and deportment is sent to parents. These reports, if carefully examined by parents and made the basis of commendation or reproof, will be of great influence in inciting students to diligence.

Expenses.

Per Term of Twenty Weeks, payable one-half in advance, and the balance at the middle of the Term.

Board, Fuel and Lights per month,	$13 00
English Tuition per term,	20 00

The above with one Language,	110 00
The above with two Languages,	115 00
The above with two Languages and Music on Piano,	145 00

Miscellaneous.

Pupils entering within the first three weeks will be charged for the whole term; those entering later will be charged from the date of entrance.

No deduction is made for absence, except that occasioned by protracted sickness; and, when students leave for any other cause without the consent of the Principal, they will be charged for the whole term.

Money for the purchase of books, sheet-music, &c., must be paid in advance.

Running accounts at the stores are not allowed.

Towels, napkins and ring, one pair of sheets, one pair of pillow-cases, and a spoon for use in her room, must be furnished by the pupil; and these, with every article of clothing, must be marked with her name.

Parents are earnestly advised not to send their daughters boxes of eatables. These are wholly unnecessary, and are often positively injurious.

Pupils coming unattended by a gentleman will be met at the depot by the Principal.

Pupils entering in September are not required to purchase the summer uniform; and those entering in January are not required to purchase the winter uniform.

Money may be sent by post office order, registered letter, express or drafts. Post office orders should be made payable to the Principal.

Patrons who send two boarding pupils, are charged for the second only one-half the regular price for tuition in English.

The daughters of ministers receive tuition in the English branches, free of charge.

Letters should be addressed:

Miss ——— ———,

Baptist Female Seminary,

Raleigh, N. C.

Or Box 410.

For further particulars, address the Principal,

F. P. HOBGOOD,

Raleigh, N. C.

Testimonials.

A few testimonials by patrons and others competent to judge, are subjoined :

[From Hon. W. N. H. Smith, of Raleigh, a patron.]

The Raleigh Baptist Female Seminary, under the care of Mr. F. P. Hobgood, as Principal, is pleasantly located in the north-eastern part of the city with spacious grounds for the exercise and amusement of its pupils. It is an institution of high grade, under the management of experienced and able instructors, providing ample means for a thorough education of young ladies in all its departments, substantial as well as ornamental, and entitled to a liberal public patronage.

W. N. H. SMITH.

Raleigh, N. C., June 23d, 1877.

[From Dr. W. M. Wingate, President Wake Forest College.]

In the most beautiful part of Raleigh, in the choicest spot of this most charming portion, is our Baptist Female Seminary. It is on high ground, with good water, good air, and delightful surroundings. It has good buildings, with airy and spacious rooms for dormitories and recitations, and with large, tastefully arranged front grounds for walks and amusements. It has a cabinet of minerals, an excellent apparatus, new and large pianos, and a gymnasium for health-giving exercises. And Bro. Hobgood, the Principal, is hale, vigorous and energetic, with an able body of teachers and professors. With its general management, its table fare, and the attention given to the comfort of the pupils, I can see nothing to hinder the largest success, and a constantly widening influence upon the daughters of our State.

[From Rev. H. A. Brown, Pastor Fayetteville Church.]

I wish all the Baptist parents in the surrounding country would visit this School. The beautiful grounds, the spacious buildings, the conveniences for physical and mental development would cause them to go home and resolve to send their daughters. The Principal is so full of energy and enterprise that success is certain if he can have that encouragement to which his faithful labors in the past so justly entitle him.

[From Dr. T. H. Pritchard, Pastor Raleigh Baptist Church.]

I am intimately acquainted with the Faculty and course of study of the Raleigh Female Seminary, and take pleasure in stating that, in my judgment, the instruction given in that Institution is thoroughly well done. The board is good, and the general management of the Seminary is such as to commend it to the favor of the public.

T. H. PRITCHARD.

[From Prof. W. G. Simmons, of Wake Forest College, a former patron.]

I have been patronizing the Raleigh Baptist Female Seminary during the present scholastic year, and take pleasure in recommending it to all who are interested in female education.

My daughter has been giving special attention to Vocal and Instrumental Music, and Drawing and Painting ; and her progress has been very gratifying. In these departments the Seminary offers superior advantages. The pianos used for teaching and practice are new and first-class instruments.

I have examined very thoroughly the Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus, and the Geological and Mineralogical specimens; and find them extensive and amply sufficient for teaching and illustrating the Scientific Course.

My experience in regard to dressing my daughter has been that under the uniform system the expense in Raleigh, has been much less than it would have been at home.

With a sufficient corps of experienced and successful teachers in all the branches of study, with excellent table fare, just suited to the wants of students, with comfortable dormitories, well warmed and ventilated, and with a system of light gymnastic exercises, designed to secure invigorating and healthful exercise, the School merits a liberal patronage from those who desire to afford the best educational advantages for their daughters.

Wake Forest College, N. C., April 10, 1875. W. G. SIMMONS.

Apart from the pleasure derived from the assurance of my two daughters of their entire satisfaction with your School and its management, allow me to add, that during a recent and somewhat protracted visit to them, I was more than gratified to find, that in the standard of scholastic training, the healthfulness and other advantages of location, the mutual attachment of pupils and teachers, which renders it so home-like, the very superior skill displayed, particularly in the Musical, Drawing and Painting Departments, and above all, in these hard times, the surprisingly low figures at which we get all these advantages, in a first-class City School, confirmed me in the impressions which governed me in sending my daughters to you. In the matter of dress, which ordinarily is so expensive in City Schools as to deter many from patronizing them, I find certainly to be no more, if so much, as it would be in a village School. Allow me to say, that I am highly pleased with your School in every respect, and in view of its many superior advantages, shall take great pleasure in recommending it to the patronage of my friends.

Oxford, N. C., May 15th, 1876.

I have known Prof. Hobgood long and intimately. He is a good scholar and polite gentleman, fully competent to fill the high and responsible position he holds as President of the Raleigh Baptist Female Seminary. I have been and am still a patron of his School. The instruction given is of the right kind, and the progress made by my daughters has been satisfactory.

T. J. HORNER.

[From Rev C. Durham, Pastor Goldsboro Church.]

I visited Prof. Hobgood's school while in Raleigh, and take pleasure in commending it to the Baptists of the State. The pupils enjoy peculiar advantages as one will readily perceive, if he will visit the School and think of its surroundings.
